of an Editorial, LONDON, July 28.—The Dully Chronicle tion Don. July 25.—The Duily Chronicle this morning devotes an editorial article to the dismissal of Benjumin Andrews, president of Brown University, which action it regards as the most serious blow the capitalist oligarchy has yet struck at social, econoric and intellectual liberty in America. The Chronicle says:

"There is no doubt that, like Professor Benis, who was dismissed from the University of Chicago, President Andrews was dismissed because he warned his countrymen against the growth of great monopolies.

We anticipate a great wave of opposition against the pretensions of the monopolist class as dangerous to freedom. This movement will lead to the substitution of public for private control and ownership of the big trusts and monopolies and the substitution of State for the colleges and universities.

That the bill which parsed the House with promptness, failed of recognition in the Senate, may be a matter of regret, but not one for discouragement. What might have been accomplished through a commission, may be achieved without one. Nor ought we to speak or think unkindly of a body which has so assiduously tolled in the work of a new body of law concerning a matter so charged with conflicting opinions and opposing interests as is any tariff act. The two questions before the country in the last political campaign were the tariff and the currency one of them is already settled. Whatever the merrits or demerits of the new measure in its particular items, it has become the law of the land.

Ernest Jewett Found the Proverbial Motherly Welcome Awaiting Rim.

The Former Tells an Interesting Tale of His Travels and Trials.-The Reporter Learns from the Tyro Weary Willie What a "Bug" Is,

Tired and dusty and with the pale cast of penitence mantling his youthful brow, fifteen-year-old Ernest Jewett, in comstepped from the Coast Line train which arrived at the Byrd-Street station shortly before 7 o'clock last evening.

Strange to relate, after Ernest's rough experience of the past three weeks, he appeared before the small knot of young friends who gathered to greet him dressed very neatly and showing not the least

He went directly home and met with a fond, motherly greeting at the door. There was no harshness, no upbraiding for his ingratitude—Ernest had done his penance and received lessons that will last with his life.

Ernest tells an interesting story of his wanderings, which sounds best in his own language:

THE BOY'S STORY.

"We left here at 9 o'clock in the morning of July 5th and caught a Coast Line freight south. We reached Rocky Mount on the 6th, and from there Mitchell, Irish, and I walked to Wilson, and from there to Contentnes Junction, where Mitchell made a mistake and caught the wrong freight going over the Southern road to Selma.

"We met about half a dozen tramps at Goldsboro and they had a crate of beer. All hands were drinking when the police came down and drove the tramps out of town, but arrested Mitchell and I.

"We told the police a story to get out, and were released the next morning. Irish and the Knoxville boy walked from Selma to Goldsboro.

"Trish and this boy met us after we got out, but we lost sight of them just afterwards, as we went with another tramp named English Tom.

"Tom had a 'bus' on his arm."

"What is a bug," queried the unsophisticated reporter.

IT WAS CROTON OIL.

"Why," came the answer, "that's a sore they make with croton oil."
"And then," continued Ernest, "we walked to Seven Mile Town and caught a local, but we were thrown off by the train crew. But we caught the extra freight that followed and were side tracked nine miles from Wilmington. We paid our fare in to the city. "We met Phillips and Saulsbury there we met l'hillies and Saulsbury there with a tramp named Percy. They told us they came from Charleston, "We did not see them long, as they went away leaving two of us in Wilming-ton."

Mrs. Jewett emphatically backed up this part of her son's statement. The experience had told heavily upon her, and she appeared as if she had just woke from an unpleasant dream.

JIMMIE WAS A SIGHT.

Jimmie Mitchell, the other truant player, returned home yesterday afternoon about 1 o'clock, and in the language of his aunt, "was a sight."

Jimmie says that he and Irish went to Knoxville, Tenn., after leaving Jewett. He saw Mr. Sales at Goldsboro, and was told by him that unless Jewett was found he Mitchell, would not be taken home. Mitchell had objected so strenuously to going further than Knoxville, that the going further than Knoxville, that the tramp had turned around and brought him toward home, as far as Petersburg, there leaving him and going toward Nor-

Mitchell came to Manchester Monday night, but on meeting some boys he knew, was falsely frightened into staying away from home until yesterday afterneon. Mrs. Bullock says that the next time such a thing happens, Jimmie will be sent to the Reformatory. The boy is heartly tired of tramping, and it is safe to say will never "go on the road" again.

Indemnity Must be Guaranteed.

BERLIN, July 27.—The Cologne Gazette says that several of the Powers, including Germany, have adopted the standclidding Germany, have adopted the stand-point that the evacuation of Thessaly by urkey cannot be demanded unless in-demnity by Greece is paid or guaranteed. As payment of indemnity by a loan is out of the question, the only alterna-tive, the Gazette says, seems to be in-ternational control of Greek finances, and unless some such guarantee is included in the treaty of peace between Greece and Turkey, it is questionable whether Ger-many will recommend the Sultan to ac-cept the treaty. cept the treaty.
